CARIBBEAN REGIONAL CONFERENCE OF PSYCHOLOGY 2020 (CRCP 2020)

Caribbean Resilience: Psychology's Response to Historical and Contemporary Disasters

Caribbean Regional Conference of Psychology
Nov 17-20, 2020
Saint Croix, US Virgin Islands

Good Day Colleagues,

March 30, 2020

We of the Caribbean Regional Conference of Psychology 2020 are eagerly continuing our preparations for hosting our 5th annual conference on St. Croix, US Virgin Islands in November 2020. As of today, we are cautiously optimistic that the pandemic referred to as Corona Virus-COV19 will be mitigated and that we will host our conference later this year. This is particularly timely as our conference is specifically addressing psychology's response to disasters in all forms.

However, CANPA remains vigilant about the informative updates available from agencies including the World Health Organization and the Center for Disease Control about the global issues affecting all of us. We assure you that we will be diligent about making the right decisions in the interest of our organization and our valued members. CANPA is working to provide messaging and interventions now and going forward to assist our member nations and international organizations who work in the Caribbean. We will continue to closely monitor this pandemic as it unfolds and will inform all participants immediately should there be any changes.

We urge you to remain safe in your communities and follow the guidelines issued by medical professionals and scientific experts. While this event was completely unexpected, we see this as an opportunity to share a Caribbean focused approach to providing culturally appropriate psychological services. We encourage you to visit our websites, crcp2020.org and canpanet.org for more information.

Thank you, The Central Organizing and Local Organizing Chairs of CRCP 2020
